

. Digital Marketing Platforms Used by Two Daily-Use Apps

App 1: YouTubeApp 2: Pinterest

Digital Marketing Platform	Example of Campaign/Ad
Instagram	YouTube promotes new shows, videos, and features through Instagram posts and Reels.
YouTube Ads	YouTube shows advertisements for Premium and other features while watching videos.
Google Ads	YouTube videos and content can appear in Google search results.
Email Marketing	YouTube sends emails about new features, recommendations, and account updates.
Social Media	YouTube uses social media to share trending videos and announcements.
Digital Marketing Platform	Example of Campaign/Ad
Instagram	Pinterest shares ideas such as fashion, recipes, and home decoration through Instagram.
Google Search	Pinterest pins often appear when people search for ideas on Google.
Email Marketing	Pinterest sends emails with recommended pins based on a user's interests.
Social Media	Pinterest promotes trending ideas and popular content on social media.
Pinterest Ads	Businesses use promoted pins to advertise products and attract users.

2. Digital Marketing vs Traditional Marketing

Point	Digital Marketing	Traditional Marketing
Medium	Uses social media, apps, websites, and email. Example: A student sees a Swiggy discount on Instagram.	Uses newspapers, TV, posters, and flyers. Example: A student gets a Domino's flyer outside college.
College Example	Events can be promoted through Instagram and WhatsApp. Example: Students receive event updates in WhatsApp groups.	Events can be promoted using printed posters. Example: College fest posters are placed on notice boards.
Targeting	Ads can target specific people. Example: A student interested in fashion sees Myntra ads.	Usually reaches a broad audience. Example: Everyone reading a newspaper sees the same advertisement.
Cost	Can start with a small budget. Example: A café runs a small Instagram ad for students.	Printing and hoardings can be expensive. Example: A business pays for a roadside billboard.
Measurement	Clicks, views, and orders can be tracked. Example: A food app can see how many people ordered after an ad.	Results are harder to track. Example: A shop may not know who visited after seeing a newspaper ad.
Interaction	Customers can comment, share, or message. Example: A customer messages a brand on Instagram.	Interaction is limited. Example: A customer cannot directly reply to a newspaper ad.
Speed	Ads can be changed quickly. Example: A food app can remove an expired offer immediately.	Changes take more time. Example: A shop needs to print new flyers for a new offer.

Real-life college example: A café can promote a student discount through Instagram and WhatsApp, while also giving discount flyers outside the college.

3. Three SMART Marketing Goals for a New Food Delivery App

1. Get 500 app downloads within the first 30 days by promoting the app on Instagram and WhatsApp. Students can get 50% OFF on their first few orders to encourage them to download and try the app.
2. Get 100 first-time food orders within the first 2 weeks by offering a special coupon. For example, students can use the coupon code FIRST100 to get an extra ₹100 OFF on their order.

3. Gain 300 registered college-student users within 45 days by partnering with at least 5 popular college-area food outlets. Students can receive a special discount when they show their college student ID while using the app.

4. Marketing Strategies for a New Music Playlist Feature

Strategy 1: Influencer Marketing

I would collaborate with college influencers and music creators to promote the new playlist feature. They could create Instagram Reels showing playlists for studying, travelling, workouts, or parties. We could also offer a special discount for students who verify their student ID and encourage influencers to share the offer with their followers.

Strategy 2: Social Media Advertising

I would run Instagram and YouTube ads targeting college students and young music lovers. The ads could promote playlists such as “Study Mode,” and “Weekend Party.” Students could receive a special offer after verifying their student ID. The advertisement could also tell users that Spotify now offers podcasts along with music, giving users more content to listen to in one app.

Example Promotional Message

“Music, Playlists & Podcasts – All in One Place! Verify your student ID and enjoy special student benefits. Create your playlist and start listening today!” .
